SERVICE CLUB MEN ARE THE GUESTS OF INDUSTRIAL GROUP

"Building Industrial Morale Through Human Relations" is Topic

BY A. O. MALMBERG

260 Gather for Session at The Philco Corp. Plant, Croydon

CROYDON, Dec. 15—The regular meeting of Bucks County Industrial Management Club was held last evening at the Philco Corp. plant, here, with over 260 men in attendance. Guests included members of the following service clubs of this district: Bristol Rotary, Bristol Exchange, Bensalem Rotary, Morrisville Rotary and Bensalem Lions. The guest speaker of the evening was A. O. Malmberg, director of public relations for the Doughnut Corporation of America, New York, N. Y., who spoke on the subject of "Building Industrial Morale Through Human Relations."

Mr. Malmberg stated that the road to morale building through human relations is directly reachable, and only so, through an improvement in the art of human leadership. "In search of an answer to our question, we must think about 'man,' and he is the most unknown thing there is upon this earth today, and the most important. Everything miserable and destructive that ever happened, and everything good, alike, had its genesis in the motivation of some human individual. Men do not differ in kind nor in their desires. They only differ in degree and in the extent of their outward reach, as they struggle and work for their share of the things of life. Man is essentially a thinking, spiritual being. He is a spirit, temporarily using a body for purposes of self-expression. You have got to get inside of that man and find out how to make him want to do the job because the man never lived who would compel a man to work. You must reach through to the emotional power which is within the individual. Thus we eliminate 'won't' power and release 'will' power."

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Government employees in an alleged Communist spy ring permitted secrets of "great military significance" to reach Russia from the Army's Aberdeen proving grounds, according to advice to the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Former Assistant Secretary of State Berle appeared before the Federal Grand Jury investigating Communist activities, Alger Hiss, from whom Mr. Chambers swore he had received the "pumpkin papers" for delivery to a Soviet agent, was in the State Department with Mr. Berle.

China's Control Yuan appealed directly to Congress for increased American aid to halt Communist conquest of China and prevent a "Sovietized" Far East.

Communist gains in North China isolated Peking and this new threat served to stimulate peace rumors in Nanking.

With British occupation forces sharply reduced, the Japanese felt that all out aid against the Communists should be extended to China or Japan should be strengthened.

The Rio de Janeiro Treaty was invoked by the Council of the Organization of American States in the reported invasion of Costa Rica from Nicaragua.

GUNS FOR COSTA RICAN DEFENDERS

A PLANE LOAD OF RIFLES and soldiers is rushed to the front from San Jose, as the Costa Rican government mobilizes the country against a rebel attack. The Costa Rican Ambassador to the U. S. officially charged that the invasion was planned in, and abetted by, Nicaragua. Denying the charge, Nicaragua has demanded an apology. (International)

EMPHASIZES NEED OF CHRISTIAN TRAINING

Responsibility of The Christian Home Considered By Dr. Kistler

MRS. MIDOUHAS SINGS

With strong emphasis on the responsibility of the Christian home, Dr. Raymon Kistler, D. D., president of Beaver College, Jenkintown, found an interested audience in members of the Women's Guild at Bristol Presbyterian Church, last evening. Also present were a number of friends, the meeting being open to the public.

"The Christian Home" was the subject of the guest speaker, who at the outset asked "What is a Christian home?" He requested that each inwardly ask if his or her home is in reality a Christian one, and if the answer prove negative to consider what is lacking. He gave consideration to what constitutes a Christian home.

With the devotional period, lead by Mrs. Sherman Bailey, revolving about Mary, the mother of Jesus, Dr. Kistler continued this thought in the proper training of girls for Christian womanhood. Mrs. Bailey had stated that not enough emphasis is placed on the mother of Jesus and her fine qualities.

Dr. Kistler mentioned some things which Christians fail to do in their homes. He compared his own home, life as a boy with that of his children and grandchildren, while those in the audience, in thought, considered such changes in the generations in their own families. "Life is so complex that we cannot do the things together as a family unit we did years ago," the speaker reminded. He stressed, however, that church and Sunday School attendance should be emphasized for and expected of girls and boys in every Christian home.

Another point brought out was that conversation in the home should not be of a critical nature, but rather the type of conversation which should take place among Christians. This is important, he added, if children are to have the proper attitude.

"We say that the schools take so much of the children's time, but I feel the churches have failed in this respect. Children in many instances are not sure what they believe nor why they believe it. We can't leave it all to the Sunday Schools in the short period the children are there each week. The home must give the needed faith and belief."

PLANS FOR SUDDEN DEATH

It is difficult for the average person to stop worrying about possible catastrophe and face the future with confidence, after reading what the military has to say.

Gen. Joseph T. McNarney of the Air Force says push-button warfare geared to a missile that will flash across a 10,000-mile range with accuracy is decidedly a probability. He doesn't predict in what year it will arrive, but it is on the way. The current obstacle is guidance.

Guidance probably will be solved, he says, by an automatic celestial navigation system. This automat will "continuously determine the position of the missile by celestial fixes and transmit signals to the auto-pilot in the missile to make corrections and keep the missile on its course."

The man at the controls sets the gadgets, shoots the missile and it automatically drops on its target 10,000 miles away.

Much nearer is the missile launched from an airplane. Fired from a long-range bomber, it would proceed by rocket power to a target not far away. That, says General McNarney, is possible "at this very hour." So, too, is the rocket missile fired from the ground and proceeding at supersonic speeds over fairly long distances. A 43,000-pound bomb to be dropped from airplanes is in the planning stage.

The end of all this may be sudden death for millions in a quarrel that is described at high policy levels to be over a way of life. Wars in the past have been fought for a similar reason.

PRICE OF SPEED

In spite of nationwide efforts in behalf of traffic safety the high-way toll in 1948 will equal that of last year, if, in fact, it does not pass that record figure.

During the first 10 months of this year 25,720 were killed in traffic accidents, compared to 26,060 in the same period in 1947. Up to October 1 there were 8 per cent fewer deaths than in 1947. But the margin was all but wiped out in October, with 3,290 killed, or more than 100 a day.

Officials of the National Safety Council see little hope for a reduction of the 1947 figures. The death rate in cities is lower, but there has been an increase in rural sections. Only 20 of the 48 states show an improvement over the traffic death toll of last year, while many cities show decreases, some as great as one-third.

At the present rate more than 30,000 persons will be killed in traffic this year, an alarming situation when it is remembered that every effort is being made to make the streets and highways safe. Speed is held mainly responsible. American motorists are slow to recognize the fact that the price of speed is often death, and continue merrily on their way.

Jesse Jones is reported to have tried to beat a set of fours with a straight. If that's a crime, half the poker players in the world would be in jail.

Inside Your Congress

Wets and Drys

—by—
SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

The 15th anniversary of the repeal of Federal prohibition brings up some interesting comparisons. Has the judgment of the people that Federal prohibition was a mistake been vindicated by the facts?

That alcoholism continues to be a terrible evil is shown by the estimate that we have 3,000,000 alcoholics, and that 8,000,000 people drink too much. But excessive drinking went on under prohibition as well as since. The real question is whether conditions on the whole are better since repeal. It appears that the per capita consumption of light beverages, beer, wine, etc., has gone up since repeal, and the per capita consumption of distilled spirits has gone down. In the 10 years, 1921-1930, inclusive, under prohibition, the average estimated consumption per year of (illegal) distilled spirits was 182,000,000 gallons. In the years 1939-1947, under repeal, the average consumption has been 155,000,000 gallons.

This comparison stands out even more favorably to repeal when we remember that population has been increasing around 300,000 persons a year. So the per capita consumption in these later years would appear to be less than during prohibition.

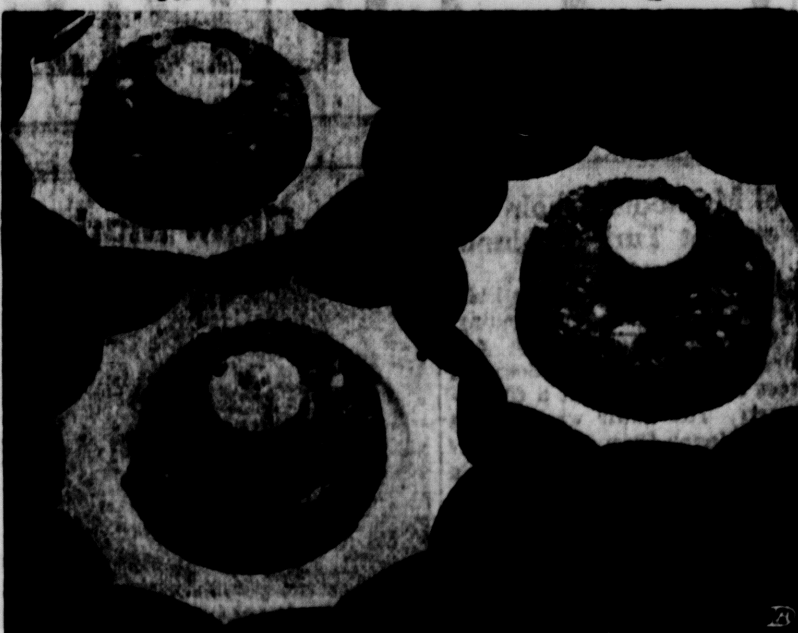

Another comparison is the per cent of personal income spent on alcoholic beverages during the two periods. During prohibition, our people, as a whole, spent 5.57% of their income for high-priced booze; in these later years for legal liquor 4.85%. These figures are based on Department of Commerce data, and "The Economic Effect of Prohibition," a book by Dr. Clark Warburton, which was edited by the faculty of Columbia University.

According to the Bureau of the Census, deaths from alcoholism (not-gut liquor) in 1929, under prohibition, were 3.9 per 1,000 deaths; in 1946, they were 1.6 per 1,000.

The National Safety Council reports that traffic accident deaths for each 100,000,000 of vehicle miles were 19 in 1925 under prohibition, and in 1947, under repeal, were 8.6. This gain in lives saved cannot, of course, be wholly attributed to prohibition vs. repeal, as there has been an intensive drive all along the line for greater safety on the highways.

The recent election produced the greatest "wet" gain in several years. Kansas, by popular referendum, re-

Time For Steamed Pudding

Cranberries are behind the fine flavor comes to the table steaming hot and topped with a hard sauce.

Fruity, moist, and rich—that's the steamed pudding, ideal for desserts all through the winter. Americans add cranberries to the pudding for a fine flavored dish that takes well to hard sauce. After combining the ingredients for cranberry pudding, put them into a well greased mold, such as a coffee can or a tube center pudding mold. Individual molds may also be used. Set the molds into a pan that has a good cover so that the steam from the simmering water is kept in. Do not let water come more than two-thirds way up the side of the mold so that it will not seep into the pudding. Leave the cover of the steamer on until the time is up, then turn pudding out and serve hot with a hard sauce.

Vary the hard sauce occasionally by adding a little lemon juice and lemon rind, or orange juice and rind to it.

Steamed puddings are hearty desserts for hungry folks, and supply good nourishment in the enriched bread and flour, cranberries, egg, and milk.

CRANBERRY PUDDING

1 cup sifted enriched flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup enriched bread crumbs
1 cup chopped or ground cranberries

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Add bread crumbs, Beat egg. Add milk or water, brown sugar, suet, and cranberries. Add egg mixture to flour mixture, blending thoroughly.

HARD SAUCE

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon flavoring extract
1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
Cream butter or margarine until light and fluffy. Add sugar. Beat well. Mix in flavoring extract.

pealed its own 67 year old constitutional ban on the sale of distilled spirits.

However, moonshining and bootlegging continue. 642 illicit stills were seized by the Treasury Department's Alcoholic Tax Unit during August. The seized stills had a daily capacity of 15,413 gallons, on which the Federal government taxes, thousands of dollars in taxes. Bootleg liquor seems to be on the increase, due partly to high taxes on legal liquor. It costs about 30 cents to produce a gallon of 100 proof whiskey, but the price is loaded with an average of $2.08 per gallon of federal and state excise taxes. In some states, it is higher. The result is that the moonshiners can take the risks of fines and prison sentence, and still undersell legal liquor.

Wets and dries will continue to debate this question, as they always have but the record seems to justify the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Even the dries regret the crime rings and corrupt political alliances of the Al Capone "dry" days. What astonishes me is that with the poor record made in preventing black markets in a single commodity, so many people have faith that the Federal government can successfully ration scores of commodities and outlaw their free market prices by price controls.

RECIPES

LARGE CUTS OF MEAT MAY BE ROASTED OR COOKED WITH MOISTURE

One of the first basic cooking lessons the new homemaker should learn is that large cuts of meat are cooked by two methods, either with or without added moisture. This is both because of the difference in tenderness of some of the cuts and for variety's sake. Of these two the difference in tenderness is more important, because there are actually only a few cuts which are cooked by both methods to give variety.

The two methods for cooking large cuts of meat are roasting and cooking with moisture. Both are equally easy to follow. Roasting is for large tender cuts of beef, veal, fresh and smoked pork, and lamb, such as: beef standing ribs; veal ribs and rump; fresh or smoked pork-shoulders, loins and hams; lamb legs and shoulders; and meat loaves. The meat for loaves may be from less tender meat cuts. However, grinding makes the meat tender so that it may be cooked as a roast.

To roast meat successfully, place the meat cut with its fattest side up on a rack in an open, shallow roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (300 degrees F. for all meats but fresh pork which is roasted at 350 degrees F.) until tender. The approximate time can be computed by any of the very good charts showing the number of minutes of cooking time to be allowed per pound.

Cooking with moisture (a small or a large amount), on the other hand, is the method for less tender cuts, such as beef pot-roasts arm and blade bone from the chuck, heel of round or rump; beef shanks; veal knuckles; pork hocks; heart; corned beef; and tender cuts like smoked ham which are cooked in liquid for variety.

Pot-roasts are browned before being cooked and only a small amount of liquid is added. The meat is then covered and cooked slowly. The other cuts are cooked completely covered with liquid. These cuts are usually cooked in a heavy utensil with a tight cover. The water, vegetable juices or other liquid is added, the utensil is then covered and the meat simmered until tender. The approximate time for cooking can be computed with the aid of standard charts on the subject.

Senior High School For Each of Three Areas is Suggested

central Bucks, far too many high schools are planned, and if sustained within 10 years be againing for broader senior high school facilities.

We can see many advantages in for high schools in buildings now serving senior high schools, but it seems reasonably sure that we do not have the funds for years to build all these plants up to modern standards. Certainly we cannot provide the plant and necessary facilities for a senior high school at Germantown, Council Rock and Hampton-Warminster, because they have too narrow a tax base to sustain adequate senior high schools.

To establish independent school districts with less than 50,000 population would be to limit the educational program in the next quarter century just as the establishment of state districts of from 5000 to 10,000 in the 19th century has in many cases handicapped the educational program in school districts in Pennsylvania in the last 25 years. In its means, Quakertown has ended itself to provide a good program, and Bristol borough did not do so. The program for the next 25 years should not be limited by the inadequacies of support and, the number of pupils which characterized districts, of less than 25,000. In building up school districts of 10,000 to 15,000 population the state is trying to do now what should have been done 30 years ago. The county board has not gone on record in favor of a county unit because the needs of the youth of this county in the next 20 years can be served by locally administered senior high schools if the tax bases are broad.

"The second defect in our organization is the separation of four units from the administration of the schools of the county as a whole. There was ample reason in the past why Bensalem, Bristol, and Morrisville benefited from an independent school system but the interests of our youth and adults in the next 20 years should bring all districts in Bucks County closer together and acting as a unit in many programs. None of our districts provide particularly well for the non-academic needs of our youth and any program and series developed beyond the 12th grade.

"In light of the experience of the past, Quakertown's school board request for an independent status is understandable although it came at a time when we had hoped all of the districts in the county would be moving closer together. The county board reluctantly acceded to Quakertown's request and now there are two instead of one projected administrative units for northwestern Bucks County. The county board is certain to miss Quakertown's interest and support.

"The county board has deeply appreciated the co-operation and support of the school boards and school administrators of Bensalem, Bristol borough, and Morrisville, and look forward to the expansion of the co-operative program in the interests of the pupils of every district in the county.

"It is worth repeating to emphasize that in the next quarter of a century there should develop a closer basis for the provision of additional educational services for Bucks County youth.

"The county plan submitted to the State Council, at the recommendation of our county superintendent, pointed the way for a metropolitan area approach for the provision of educational services, now considered inadequate in our county. A later report will develop the possibilities for Bucks County in the next two decades if some kind of metropolitan plan is made possible in which Bucks, together with Philadelphia, Delaware, Montgomery, and Chester counties might participate."

heads," said Mr. Malmberg. "They never did and never will. People think with their hearts, their emotions. 'As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.' So, you see, men select out of the sum total of their knowledge those things which will help them do the things they want to do. The wanting is the emotional drive and it comes from the heart. All knowledge is but a prop and aid to desire. To the emotional drive, to the emotional powers within people, you and I have got to go as we perfect this art of human leadership and so find our way to better human relations."

Mr. Malmberg closed his forceful message by paralleling the great English artist, William Holman Hunt's picture, "The Light of the World," to his message. Mr. Hunt said of his picture that the door upon which the Master was knocking was not just an ordinary door; it was the door to the human heart. It needed no handle, for it can be opened only from within. Mr. Malmberg challenged the men with the questions, "Can you, in all humility and understanding sympathy, knock upon the doors of the human hearts on your payroll and so reach the source of their personal dynamic will to work? Can you develop loyalty and co-operation and mutual sympathy and understanding that divisions disappear and unity raises its joveller head? Then indeed would you be an expert in the art of human leadership. Then indeed will come to you and your company the realization that you have created better industrial morale through human relations. Then will you fully understand the message of Mr. Hunt's painting, 'The Light of The World.'"

Bridge to dinner... ON TIME

It often happens... afternoon "get-togethers" last longer than you expected.

But why worry when electricity has taken over your cooking chores? You prepare dinner, put it in the range and set the clock before going out. Right on the split second electricity flashes into action and starts cooking. All that remains to do upon returning is to make the gravy or add the little appetizing touches that turn dinner into delightful family occasions. Whisk through them in a jiffy and dinner's on time.

Electricity is that way in everything it does. It not only makes each task easier, but you can depend upon it. Right around the clock it's ready to go to work. Years of research and continuous experiments by your neighbors who operate Philadelphia Electric have seen to that. Right now these P. E. men and women are devoting the same energy and talents toward keeping electricity the lowest priced necessity on the family budget.

SAINTS TO OPPOSE R. & H. IN OPENING TILT HERE TONIGHT

The Bristol Basketball League swings into action again tonight with two games scheduled for the Rohn & Haas court. In the opener, the St. Ann's quintet will play Rohn & Haas, while in the night-cap, the Falls Alumni aggregation clashes with the Morrisville Hoop-ers. First game will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The chemical mixers have a strong lineup on paper and should be a threat to the league championship. The team will be handled by Jesse Vanant and has such players as "Augie" Everitt, who led the league in scoring last season and also is one of the tallest players in the circuit; "Stan" Lelinski, who starred with the Knights of Columbus last season; "Jimmy" Egli, former court star at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College and present coach of the Langhorne High School; Paul Roby, lanky star from Penn; the Carnevale brothers, Fat and Wally, who have been playing here for several years, and "Bill" Petrick, who led the circuit in scoring two years ago.

The St. Ann's cagers will be managed by Fred Barbetta, who will also be in uniform. Outstanding for the "Saints" are Bert Barbetta and "Rabbit" Palumbo. The latter two were among the high scorers in the league several years ago.

The Falls Alumni contingent will be in the folds of another manager, "Billy" Leigh, of Tullytown. Leigh has been successful in signing the Lynch twins, Gene and Roy, who starred on the court for Fallington High for several years. Leigh also has the tall Frank Thropp on his list. Thropp was one of the leaders of the Morrisville League last season. In addition to the above, the Falls aggregation will have Kenny Anderson, Kenny Parr, Joe Breisford, Al Monti, Norm White, and Bill MacSherry.

Morrisville will be captained by "Mickey" Stradling. Stradling's exploits on the gridiron as a member of the St. Ann's football team has earned him much prestige in this section and it will be interesting to see what kind of a combination he moulded together to represent Morrisville.

BULLDOGS WIN OVER BENSELEM BY SCORE OF 55-39

MORRISVILLE, Dec. 15—Morrisville High chalked up its fourth win of the season here last night as it registered a 55-39 victory over the Bensalem Owls in a Lower Bucks County League tilt.

Although it never had the lead, Bensalem was in the tilt until midway of the third quarter, when Coach "Jim" Doherty's lads began to rip the cords consistently. It was in this canto that "Walt" Bucknum found his eye and began to add more points to his season's total.

Until Bucknum and his mates started his scoring spree, the Owls had cut the Bulldogs' lead to six points. But after the spurt the game became a rout.

Morrisville had 24 field goals for the night, with Bucknum getting nine. Woodruff sank in eight two-pointers, while "Johnny" Marucci had 13 points.

"Eddie" Oliver made 17 of the Bensalem points on eight two-pointers and a foul.

The Junior Varsity game also went to Morrisville, with the final count being 48-35. Gavin and Henley led the winners in scoring in this tilt, while Smith had seven points for Bensalem.

The Bensalem team will now be idle until after the Christmas holiday.

PENNSBURY EASY FOR BRISTOL HIGH; SCORE ENDS 53-16

Bristol High had an easy time with Pennsbury High here last night as it rolled up a 53-16 triumph. It was the opening game of the Lower Bucks County League for each team, and the second straight triumph for the Warriors.

Coach Jerry Bloom used his entire array of 13 players in the contest. The Warriors were slow in chalking up field goals, taking a short 6-2 lead at the quarter. At half-time, Bristol boosted the edge to 19-9 and was at its best in the third session when it scored 21 points while holding the Pennsbury team to a foul goal.

Again it was Jim Sottile who led the Bristol team in scoring, with 17 points, six fielders and five out of seven fouls. However, it was Don DeLong who loomed in the pair of double-deckers that touched off the fireworks. DeLong ended up with 10 points, the same as "Ham" Kon-efal.

Bristol made 15 out of 29 fouls to keep in the 500 mark, as against Bordentown when it made 10 out of 20 fouls.

The Warriors will meet the Alumni quintet Friday night on the home field, and next Tuesday they play "Tom" Campton's Upper Merion five. Upper Merion scored a 61-43 triumph over Morrisville a week ago.

NEW FASHIONS OF WORLD BRING NEW NAMES TO PUBLIC

Mrs. Emille K. Langer (Assistant Home Economics Representative)

New words come with the new look in the fashion world. Some of the new terms to style-minded homemakers who will find them on new labels are listed below.

The redingote is appearing again. It is a fitted coat worn over a contrasting or print dress.

Fashion experts are featuring shoes with the Louis heel, curved in outline, and flared at the top and base. A Baby Louis heel, is the same shape, but lower. Louis heels are farther forward than a regular heel. The Dutch Boy style in heels is broader than the Baby Louis and has a slight curve or slant.

Touque, wattleau, and cloche are terms for new style hats. A touque is a small, close-fitting hat with no brim. The wattleau has a flat crown, rippling front brim and a turned-up back brim. Wattleaus are dressy, feminine hats. Cloche hats fit the head and have small brims that are either even or irregular in width.

New fabrics also share in the fashion spotlight. Sunbak is a new fabric, wool on one side and satin on the other. It can be used for evening wraps and is popular for zip-in coat linings.

Bayadere is a new type of print. The design is in stripes of strongly contrasting colors running across the fabric.
